CLASS WILL

We the class of nineteen hundred and twenty-nine of Taunton High School, of the City of Taunton, State of Massachusetts, knowing that we may expire on the eve of our initiation into the Alumni Association, do hereby publish and make known this our last will and testament.

To our beloved principal, Mr. Fred U. Ward, we leave best wishes and kindest regards for piloting the Class of 1929 through its stormy voyage of study.

To the class of 1930, our successors, we bequeath our over-abundant store of knowledge, gained through four years of diligent study.

To the class of 1931, our ability to meet all difficulties with a practiced ease and grace.

To the freshmen (Bless them), French dolls to replace tricycles, and novels for fairy tales.

Robert Bowers: To my dearest friend, Bob Cushman, '31, the ability of getting the best lunch chair beside the booth.

Virginia Carter—To Janette Eldridge '31, all of my expensive thumbtacks for her personal desk, to be used to the best advantage for her ever increasing picture gallery.

Daniel Davis—To the next adjutant, a collection of horse shoes and four-leaf clovers against the "Jinx" which always appeared to me at drills.

Janet Hartil—To "Dot" MacKendrick '31, my ability to register the "good-morning-merry-sunshine" look early Monday mornings.

To "Ellie" Hopkins '30, my excessive avoirdupois in the hope she will dispose of it successfully.

To Ruth Knowles '30, my "rep" for loquacity, hoping it will enable her to talk twice as fast and say three times as much.

Roger Hathaway—To the next admiral, one large bottle of listerine to stimulate the voice at prize drills.

Marguerite Miller—To "Neddie" Marotte, my overdose of inches that she may be able to make the baskets in the gym with ease.

Adelaide Owers—To Della Schwab, the honor of holding down the chair in the main corridor in an effort to direct visitors and to greet all who saunter by including the faculty.

To some luckless partaker of Virgil, my low down seat in 105, hoping that she may get as good a talking machine perched in front of her as I got. It wasn't even necessary to put a nickel in the slot.

Margaret Phipps—To "Dot" Gifford '30, my position as "inspiration" to a certain public speaker.

To Paul MacKendrick '30, my ability to originate "ears" for the "Tauntonian".

To Vernon Stead '30, my ever-answered prayers, hoping he will gain the Colby Medal "for keeps," providing the candy reward is furnished as before.

Sara Reisner—To my sister Anna '32, the pleasure of having Mr. Cronan in American History, and the ability to uphold the family honor in debate.

To Bob Cushman '30, some Junior girl whom he can laugh with (or at) for the rest of his high school career.

Anne Silvia—To Eleanor Hopkins, my cheer-leading voice.

Mary Sparkes—To my sister Helen '31, my side seat in Miss Stone's room which overlooks Washington Street where she may find diversion during "Comus".

The Seniors in 103—To the Junior members who come at the tail end of the alphabet, our ten seats, with no interference from teachers.

Latin I.—To all belabored undergraduates studying Latin, we leave our vast fund of knowledge accumulated during the past four years.

In witness thereof we set our hand and seal.

THE SENIOR CLASS.

ASHES

SARA L. REISNER '29

Before me lies the hearth;
Smoke is gone, and fire;
The last spark has
Flickered into obscurity.
Greyer are the ashes
Than the November sky.

So in my heart the fire dies,
The fire of Hope and Love,
The roseate hues of Yesterday:
Only feathery ashes of memory
Remain, to float away
At the whisper of the wind.

AMATEUR RADIO

ROGER F. HATHAWAY '29

Amateur radio station 1-RY is one of approximately sixteen thousand such stations licensed by the Department of Commerce of the United States Government. This station first came on the air in May 1926, and has gradually been built up and improved until today it ranks with the best stations of its class. 1-RY has been in communication with every continent, thirty-seven different countries, and forty-five of the forty-eight states of the United States.

Communications are held by use of either telegraphic code or phone. Since the use of phone for communication is limited to certain wavelengths, conversation is more commonly carried on by use of the Morse International Code. Of course, all communications are maintained entirely without wires or, in other words, by means of what is commonly understood as wireless telegraphy.

1-RY has experimented with phone, and even with its low power has succeeded in talking with stations nearly a thousand miles away. The use of phone was discontinued at 1-RY because certain local radio receivers were able to tune in the signals, and 1-RY did not care to interfere with the broadcast reception of its neighbors. The human voice has been heard at this station from such distant points as England, France, Italy, New Zealand, and a ship off the coast of Central Africa, and code signals received from points half-way around the globe form no uncommon experience.

The receiver used by amateurs in wireless telegraphy is similar in appearance, construction, and operation to the simpler broadcast receivers. A fairly long antenna wire is employed, and ordinary tubes and batteries are required. The main difference is in the coils, which are all of home construction and suited to many different wavelengths. Not long ago a coil of a few turns of wire brought in a short wave broadcast station in Chelmford, England! For a number of evenings, family and friends were entertained by dance music from a famous London restaurant, the chimes in the Parliament Building, and the deep-toned notes of Big Ben striking the midnight hour in London, which, by the way, is only seven o'clock in the evening at Taunton.

A visitor to 1-RY would observe a large assortment of postcards on the wall, and by closer inspection would see that these bear the post marks of many states and foreign cities. The most conspicuous feature of the card is the large letter and numeral combination which identifies the station and is printed in a variety of bright colored inks. Directly over the operator's desk is a card from New Zealand bearing a sketch of the Apteryx, the wingless bird which is found in that country. Nearby is a card from Tunis with the star and crescent representative of that country. A card from Costa Rico bears a sketch of a thatched, native hut and palm trees with a serpent, alligators, and monkeys in the foreground. The head of a moose decorates a card from 4-CP, Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan, a province of Western Canada. There are also cards from Chile, South Africa, Australia, Sweden, England, Holland, and many other distant countries. The largest card in the whole collection is from Scotland!

These cards are proofs of contacts carried on between stations and are valued chiefly for that reason. Probably the most interesting experiences, however, come to an amateur radio operator more informally and unexpectedly. In June 1927, 1-RY received word that Commander Byrd's plane had started for Europe. Our station was able to pick up signals from the plane for several hours and thus receive the news of the flight and in turn send it on to the Boston newspapers. Communication has been maintained with the Grenfell mission in Labrador, and in several instances, messages have been relayed from this mission through our station to Lady Grenfell in Massachusetts. At various times in the past year messages have been picked up from Commander MacMillan's expedition, which has lately returned from Northern Labrador. I recall one incident which the operator related concerning the Eskimos outside his radio room on board the boat who were touching the antenna wire to see the sparks jump from the ends of their fingers. Several weeks ago, 1-RY was heard by Byrd's ship, THE CITY OF NEW YORK of the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. The ship, then several hundred miles off the coast of Peru, talked for about half an hour with our station.

The transmission of personal messages, sometimes of great importance, is a common experience to amateur radio operators. A few days ago, for example, 1-RY received a message from Germany to be relayed to a friend of the German operator in a city in New York State. Several months ago our station relayed a message from Hartford, Connecticut to the Phillippine Islands by way of New Zealand. At one time a message was sent from Belgium to Hawaii and arrived at Honolulu four hours before it was sent! This odd incident, of course, was due to the time difference of approximately sixteen hours.

Amateur radio may serve a purpose more important in time of disaster. This fact is illustrated by the work of the southern amateurs during the West Indian Hurricane, and the amateur operators of New England during the Vermont flood. 1-RY assisted in a small way during both disasters.

To me, amateur radio is the most inspiring of hobbies. I shall always remember the thrill I received when I made my first contact with another station, 1-BNM in North Dighton. It was a distance of only five miles, but I was elated, for it was my first wireless communication. Now I sit down at the set for a few minutes before breakfast and think nothing of talking three or four times a week with Australia at a distance of eleven thousand miles.

Today radio has become a part of every household. It has removed the vagueness and mystery of the earth and brought the nations and individuals into closer contact so that they realize, as never before in the history of the world, daily activities on the other side of the globe. Time and space are almost annihilated. In fact, I have talked with an amateur in Australia so many times that I regard him as one of my personal friends. Will the human mind ever again achieve so marvelous an invention as radio?

FROM A GREY CLIFF

MARJORIE HUSE

Upon a wide grey cliff I stood one day,
And watched a schooner slowly sailing past,
While gliding swiftly by with foaming spray,
A sleek, grey, modern steamship speeded fast.
O stately sailboat of the days of yore,
You look majestic there with sails in place
Against the blue of sky and green of shore,
Like some aristocrat of noble race.

For though with swift, new crafts you cannot vie,
Your splendor, grace, and beauty are the same.
I often wonder, do you ever sigh
For days when you were at the height of fame,
For daring, dangerous days that used to be,
For days when you were lord of all the sea?

SUNSET

H. HOWARD CROOME, JR.

The soft, close hush of twilight,
The last bright gleam of the sun;
The twitter of birds at rest in their nest,
And then the day is done.

EACH DAY

ELIZABETH G. HOYE

Each day shall bring to birth some lovely thing
The poet in your eye shall see anew:
Against the azure blue a black-bird's wing,
A brilliant tavern sign that welcomes you;
The rose beside a wall of crumbled stone,
And now and then a rain-soaked butterfly;
Against the sky a lofty tree alone;
The careless casual smiles of passers-by;
The cottage with a picket fence aslant,
The white paint trimmed with blue, and shingles old;
The tiny sandhill, home of toiling ant,
The sturdy footprint in the bare ground, cold:
All pause, and to the dull world brightly say,
"Let all Earth's joy be yours—each day, each day."

THE OLD LIBRARIAN

RUTH BENNETT

He walks among the throngs with stately grace,
Yet of that noisy rush seems not a part;
His deep, calm eyes and thoughtful, placid face
Show underneath a calm and peaceful heart.
He reads within the quiet, book-filled shrine
The tomes and manuscripts upon the shelf,
And from their stores of treasure, line by line,
Finds precious, gleaming jewels for himself.
The truths that great philosophers have taught
Bring aid and wisdom for each daily test;
The poets, weaving beauty in each thought,
Add riches to a mind most fully blest.
O learned patriarch with silvery hair,
You are yourself a volume old and rare.

THE PROFESSOR

ROGER F. HATHAWAY

Old and grey,
He sits with arms folded,
Peering into the depths of the room
With a penetrating expression of knowledge,—
His mind upon bottomless subjects.

SONNET

STEPHEN H. RHODES

How graceful are the schooners under way!
Through sunshine, rain, blind snow, and sleet,
Against the wind, their course, they slowly beat,—
The last of ancient traders on the bay.
The triremes, galleys, clipper ships, so fleet,
Have lived their lives and had their glorious days;
Such barks long since have ceased to meet our gaze
Like Spain's Armada sunk by Drake's defeat.

Now trade is carried on in ships of steel,
Propelled by smelling diesels and by steam.
The romance of the sea which was so real
Is lost, and clippers since, as in a dream,
Have faded, like the chants of sailor men:
Ships of romance ne'er will return again.

STAR GAZING

RUTH BENNETT

The scientist looks at the stars through a telescope
And thinks in terms of light years, gravity,
Planets, suns, and revolving satellites,
Meteors, nebulae, and burned-out stars,
And builds a world of theory with cold figures.

The poet, gazing into the star-lit sky,
Sees a beautiful garden of blossoming flowers
With seven fair sisters dancing to angel music;
A valiant knight with gleaming, unsheathed sword
Slays fiery dragons; then he quaffs his fill
Of the Milky Way from a brimming silver dipper.

THE SENTINEL PINE

MARJORIE HUSE

Alone on a barren cape
Overlooking the sea
A sentinel pine stands, its rugged form
Outlined against the sky
Like a silent guardian of the sea!
Alone, not even a friendly bush for company,—
Silent and still
Save the swish of the waves,
And the sighing of the wind.

THE BOYS' PUBLIC SPEAKING CLUB

The aim of the Boys' Public Speaking is to accustom its members to speak before an audience. The members are not trained to be orators but simply to speak extemporaneously. The training consists of prepared and impromptu speeches. The topic for each meeting is chosen by the chairman, and is announced at the opening of the meeting. After several speakers, chosen by the chairman, have given their opinion, the subject is open for discussion. One of the greatest values of the club lies in the fact that it gives its members an opportunity to increase their knowledge of the subject by hearing the opinions of other speakers. Whether he realizes it or not every member is preparing himself for public speaking, which may later prove valuable to him.

The membership of the club is limited to Juniors and Seniors. The club meets, if possible, every week and gives every member a chance to speak several times during the year. During the past year a joint meeting of the Boys' and Girls' Public Speaking Clubs was held, in which a lively and interesting discussion was carried on. The Boys' Public Speaking Club sponsors one or more assemblies each year and also holds a debate with the Debating Club. Under the leadership of Mr. Bowman, as faculty advisor, and the competent set of officers, the club has completed a very successful season.

DESERTED

DANIEL DAVIS

Silent and dark,
Alone against the midnight sky,
The house, once ringing with merry laughter,
Now stands deserted.
The moon peeps from behind a cloud
And, reflected from a window,
Appears like some ghost
Seeking to escape the awful silence.
Across the plain comes the low howl of a hound:
Then all is silent again.

THE JOKESMITH

"The jokesmith is a hapless wight,
Who cudgels, in bewildered brain,
Wise cracks to whet the appetite
Of those who read in lighter vein.

Upon his desk, forlorn, unused,
Rejected manuscripts are piled:
Brain children coming home to roost,
No wonder that the joker's wild."

AT THE DANCE

Gordon: My shoes are just killing my feet.
Eugenia: They're killing mine too.

"Don't ever borrow money from him—he's a shark. He wants fifty per cent in winter and sixty in summer."
"Why more in summer?"
"Because the days are longer."

Collars will be worn as usual by the laundries this season.

"What's all the excitement down the street?"
"A scout did so many good turns he got dizzy."

Peg (at dance); "This is the twelfth time you've been to the refreshment buffet."

Rog: "Oh, that's all right. I tell everybody I'm getting something for you."

Lady Reporter—"I shouldn't think you'd enjoy knocking other men down."

Larry Fontes, Famous Boxer—"Oh, yes, it's all in the daze work."

Don't think you're a bargain just because you're half off.

Mr. Scott (stressing difference between the rose and the modest violet): "Now a well dressed lovely lady goes along the street but is proud and greets nobody—that is the rose—behind her goes a small creature with bowed head—"

Helen Parker: "That is her husband."

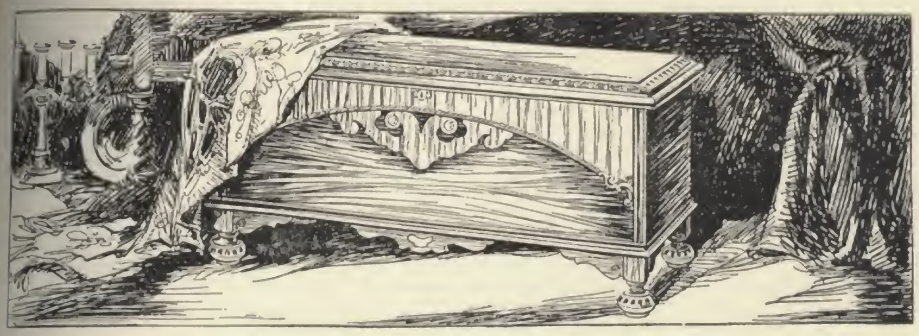
A beautiful gift for her graduation

a chest . . . steeped in the romance of the past



THE DOWLING DOWRY CHEST

by LANE

The design of this chest reverts to an old dowry chest said to have been used in the Court of King James I in about the year 1620.

According to the story, one of the court attaches, a Sir Henry Dowling, had one daughter whom he loved very dearly.

This daughter, Amelia, had been sent to a convent on the continent. When she was ready to return to England, Sir Henry, in true fatherly fashion, desired to commemorate her home coming with a gift.

So he called in the artisans and he ordered them to make a chest which should surpass all others in beauty. He selected the wood, watched the work step by step, and finally when the chest was completed, nobody in all the Court had ever seen one lovelier.

Amelia came home. She accepted the chest with heart overflowing with joy. And, according to the story which ends just as all such stories should, she married, settled down and lived happily ever after.

The gift from her father then passed on down through many generations finally to bestow its wealth of beauty and romance upon this modern adaptation, the Dowling Hope Chest, especially designed for the Girl Graduate by Lane—the world's foremost cedar chest maker.
